

Produced by Local Concepts LLC

Sustainable Agriculture: With or without Labor

Chesapeake Foodshed Network Coffee Talk Webinar

October 7, 2016

Resource Experts: Jessica Culley & Leila Borrero Krouse,
CATA - The Farmworkers Support Committee

Jessica Culley (catanj@aol.com) has been working with grassroots community organizations both internationally and in the U.S. over the past 15 years. Over the past 15 years, Ms. Culley has worked with CATA – The Farmworkers’ Support Committee, as a community organizer around workers’ rights, pesticide safety, health education, immigration policy, civil rights, human rights, and other issues.

Leila Borrero Krouse (leila.borrerokrouse@gmail.com) has been a stalwart provider of services to immigrants throughout the Delmarva region for the past twenty-five years. Since 2013, she has been working with CATA – The Farmworkers’ Support Committee as a community organizer and a BIA-certified Immigrant Specialist. Previously she worked as an immigration specialist at Catholic Charities where she earned a reputation as one of our community’s most trusted and dedicated legal service providers. In recognition of Ms. Borrero-Krouse’s work, the Maryland Governor’s Commission on Hispanic Affairs honored her with the “Faith-Based Champion Award” in 2010. Ms. Borrero –Krouse was also named to the Governor’s Commission on Hispanic Affairs in the 1990’s.

Chesapeake Foodshed Network

Catalyzing connections and collaborations that build a sustainable, resilient, inclusive and equitable regional food system in the Chesapeake Bay watershed.

Produced by Local Concepts LLC